Nebraska Writers Guild

The Nebraska Writers Guild has been supporting writers since 1925. We have an impressive list of founders including Mari Sandoz, Willa Cather, John G. Neihardt, Bess Streeter Aldrich, Dorothy Canfield Fisher, Louise Pound, and A.E. Sheldon. In its first year, two members of the guild were included in the Saturday Review of Literature's list of the ten writers most representative of American life. Yes, these are hallowed halls and we have incredible respect for our past...and enthusiasm for our future!

Details

Conference - Members of the Nebraska Writers Guild get discounted admission to our conferences, which are held twice a year. (April and October) At the eastern Nebraska spring conference and western Nebraska fall conference scheduled guest professionals and members provide insights about writing, publishing, marketing and production. Speaker topics, workshops, and one-on-one exchanges are offered for all writing disciplines. The conferences focus on continuing education and interaction with publishers, editors, producers, and agents.

Networking - Members of the Guild have a wonderful advantage to network with each other, help promote each other and share ideas and information.

Email Group - One of the best benefits of membership is access to the email group, where writers of all skill levels are able to chat and discuss all kinds of things. We help each other with craft, when and where to publish, and how to market our work.

Website Promotion - The Nebraska Writers Guild has a website that is Google friendly and we feature the website on all our materials, drawing traffic. Members can promote themselves on the website in several ways.

1. Member Profiles - With an online profile, members can feature what they write, their websites and blogs, and gain interest in their work from those visiting the website.

2. Member Services - If you are an editor, graphic designer, or offer other author services, you are invited to advertise your services on the website.

3. Awards - Members can list the awards they have received on the website.

4. Publications - Members can list everything they have published in the Publications section of the website.

5. Speakers Bureau - Members can add themselves to the Speakers Bureau if they wish to be contacted by organizations looking for authors to speak.
